At Aggreko, we deliver energy solutions all over the world so communities can thrive, and businesses can grow. We provide power across borders in Southern Africa, use solar to power mines in West and East Africa, help Netflix burn less diesel when they film on location, keep ice rinks frozen around the world, and bring relief when natural disasters strike.

Through his role, Kollar oversees the company's footprint across 20 countries in South and East Africa. Currently, Aggreko has active projects in six of those 20 countries but the company has ambitions to expand its project portfolio further. The African mining industry of 2018 is an industry full of hope.

Aggreko, a global energy solutions provider, has acquired the South Africa- and UK-based businesses of RenEnergy group. This strategic investment comes amid a greater drive for businesses, governments and individuals to transition to a greener, cleaner world.
