What is a photovoltaic (PV) circuit?

Shine light on it, and an electric potential--a voltage--will build up across the silicon: hence "photovoltaic", or PV. Run a circuit between the front and the back, and in direct sunlight that potential can provide about seven watts of electric power.

How does a photovoltaic cell work?

A photovoltaic cell is a very simple thing: a square piece of silicon typically 182 millimetres on each side and about a fifth of a millimetre thick, with thin wires on the front and an electrical contact on the back. Shine light on it, and an electric potential--a voltage--will build up across the silicon: hence "photovoltaic", or PV.

Do photovoltaics get cheaper as production increases?

The degree to which processes get cheaper as production gets larger is frequently expressed in terms of the extent to which unit costs come down every time cumulative production doubles. From the mid-1970s to the early 2020s cumulative shipments of photovoltaics increased by a factor of a million, which is 20 doublings.

Why is Europe re-industrialising the photovoltaic industry?

Currently, Europe is only responsible for 3% of the world's installed photovoltaic modules compared to China which runs 80%. The new factory also moves Europe in the direction of more low-carbon and recyclable industrial production. Holosolis is part of the European dynamics of re-industrialisation of the photovoltaic sector.
